

Grantown Heritage Plaques: Burnfield

Bridge of the East End Burn with Sannack Forrester and the Grath and Gladstone house behind

Burnfield as it is today.

The Square from the Burnfield Bridge

Water for Grantown's first industries was supplied by the burn diverted through "Burnfield". On its grassy banks, newly made linen was laid out in the sun to bleach.

Here the last sword duel in Strathspey was fought in around 1780 between Captain Gordon, Ballintomb and Mr MacGregor, factor.

Grantown youngsters on the bridge

For many years, the open grassy space was used for games of shinty and cricket. Now it is a car park. Burnfield is now the home of Grantown's Museum, Here can be found stories and information on the town of Grant from its foundation into modern times.